CAMO Camo Top Trailer by Stieg Larsson and The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo Camo Top Trailer by Stieg Larsson and The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo Camo Top Trailer by Stieg Larsson and The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo and The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo and The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo and The Girl Who Played With Fire. The Camo Top Trailer is the result of a partnership between author Stieg Larsson and car designer/builder Anton E. Busch. The trailer was built by Tiny Torpedo and it comes with two hydraulic brakes, four speakers, a built-in stereo system with a CD player, a central locking system, a mini fridge, and an electric lock. The camo top was designed by Surfaces of Sweden and is made of a 2 mm rip-stop canvas and a 2 mm foam padding. On the front side, the Camo Top Trailer is painted black with red lining and a red "top". The cargo area of the vehicle has space for two bicycles. "The Camo Top Trailer was the first project in collaboration between the author, Anton Busch and myself," said Martin Shkreli, the CEO of Evil Geniuses, Inc., the company behind TinyTorpedo. "It was clear from the beginning that Anton and I had something special in mind. The Camo Top Trailer is an homage to the wonderful book/movie and it's a fitting tribute that this vehicle was designed by Anton." Stieg Larsson started his career as a journalist at the news magazine Aftonbladet, before he became a full-time author of the best-selling crime novels The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo and The Girl Who Played With Fire. Stieg was found dead in his apartment in Stockholm on December 19, 2004. His last published work was the novella Lions in Winter, just a few weeks before his death. 'Joker' will always be linked to Heath Ledger Director Todd Phillips says the film will live on as a lasting legacy of Heath Ledger. As Hollywood Studios get their reels ready for the massive superhero and comic book films on their horizon, it looks as though one of the genre's biggest stars is being cemented into place as a solo legend. Director Todd Phillips has explained how his megahit Joker will live on, and in the process, revealed that the culture of fame is at odds with the community that Heath Ledger was a part of. "I think the Joker represents a loss of innocence," Phillips told The Hollywood Reporter. "It's a great lesson. I think ultimately, the Joker represents that loss of innocence, and he makes you think about that loss of innocence, and he makes you think about that loss of innocence. That's what I think is so powerful about Joker." While Ledger is largely credited for earning the star-studded title role in the film that grossed $1.6 billion worldwide, Phillips says he doesn't necessarily feel the risk of breaking from the character. "Heath and I kind of talk about this a lot," he continued. "You don't lose your voice by doing a character. You have to lose your voice in order to find your voice. Your voice is so much more interesting." One of the most defining pieces of Ledger's character was the performance of a lifetime, which made him the first actor to receive an Oscar nomination for playing someone who doesn't have a name. Clearly, Ledger's life was cut short, and it's an injustice that Phillips says he feels should be paid tribute to through the continued work of his killer legacy. "Ultimately, when I think about Heath, it's the Joker," he said. "That's what I'm proud of. When we create an acting legacy, we're trying to have our own signature, and the Joker becomes our signature. We're trying to have our own Heath Ledger moment." While Phillips has given fans the only two Joker-centric pictures he
